News and happenings – Catfield Environmental Group, April 2023

The daffodils are out! Many of the bulbs bought with your donations and planted in the autumn are now up, and some are flowering, in particular those outside Trend which were the first to go into the ground. Thank you again for your generosity. With all the bulbs also in bloom in residents' gardens, the village is looking very colourful.

Litter pick

Far too much rubbish was again collected on our litter pick on 11th March. This included a mouldering collection of debris (e.g. odd socks, plastic toys, beer boxes) around the recycling bins at the village hall car park. There was satisfaction in removing it all from the natural environment, but it's dismaying that some people do not see the consequences of their actions. We also took the opportunity to add mulch to most of the hedging on the playing field.

Bingo success ...

A huge thank you to everyone who came along to our first bingo evening on 3rd March. You generously bought lots of raffle tickets and made it a fun evening. Special thanks to Graham and Holly Edwards who did the calling, Gill Bailey for organising and running it all and everyone who donated prizes and cakes. We have yet to deduct expenses from the takings but expect to have raised well over £300, which will go towards environmental projects in the village.

... and another one on Friday 7th April

The Village Hall is booked for an Easter Bingo session on 7th April at 7 pm. Hope you can come!

Village Fete, Sunday 25th June

The fete is taking place at The Old Rectory on School Road from 11 am to 4 pm, and at its first meeting the planning group was brimming with ideas to make it an enjoyable event for all.

We are delighted to acknowledge generous donations towards the event from Catfield Hall Estate and Haines Marine. This is so helpful and allows us to get facilities and equipment confirmed at an early stage.

For the day to be a success, we will need lots of helpers! We've put out an appeal and hope to hear from anyone who can lend a hand with set-up and/or support on the day in a variety of roles. If that could be you, please contact us at catfieldenvironmentalgroup@gmail.com (write Village Fete in the subject line) or phone 07932 191558. Also, if you'd like to get involved in organising the event, or you can help with musical entertainment, please do get in touch.

Next Meeting Wednesday 5th April 2023 at 7pm in the Village Hall

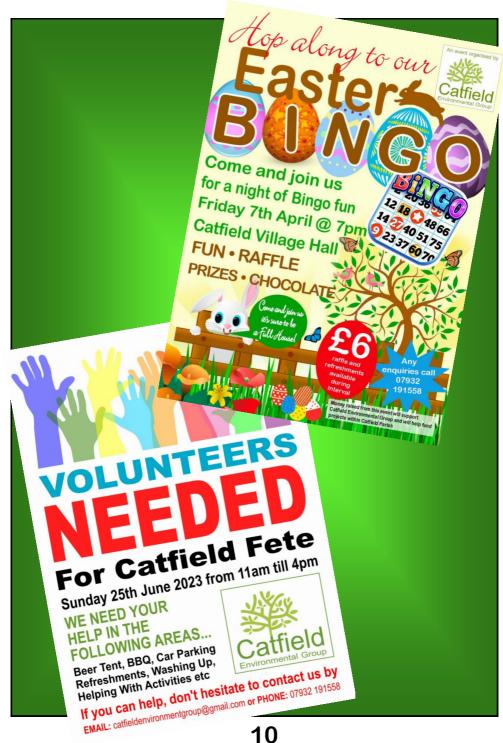

With the clocks springing forward later this month we can all relish the longer days and opportunity to spend more time outdoors. Spring is one of my favourite times of the year with temperatures rising and everything bursting into life. For those of us who suffer from hay fever these changes are not always so welcome and unfortunately seasonal allergies can affect our pets as well. In fact, skin conditions are the most common problems encountered in first opinion veterinary practice and can be one of the most challenging to resolve. For 95% of dogs who suffer from skin allergies it is environmental allergens, such as grasses and pollens that trigger the reaction and much less commonly related to the food they eat. This means that we can't eliminate the source of the problem in most instances, but there is still a lot that can be done. In young dogs we can try and identify the exact allergens and create unique vaccines to desensitise them over a period of time. In cases where this can't be done there are a variety of means, through shampoos, medications and topical treatments, to manage the symptoms and ensure our pets are comfortable and itch free. All individuals are different, but the discomfort associated with being itchy is there for them all, so if your pet is suffering a skin problem then it is definitely worth seeking veterinary advice as to what can be done.

Our case this month is Henry, an 8 year old Cocker Spaniel. His owners first brought him in because he had suddenly become lethargic and had stopped eating. On examination he was very pale so was admitted for blood tests. These confirmed that he was suffering a life-threatening anaemia due to a rare condition that meant his own immune system was attacking his red blood cells. At this time his red blood cells were so low he required a blood transfusion. We also started treatment to suppress the immune reaction and had to check his red blood cell count at least once a week for a couple of months. Fortunately he responded very well and within 2 months he was no longer anaemic. He has not yet been weaned off the medications completely he is back to his old self and doing fantastically well.

We are very fortunate to have volunteer blood donors who we can call at times of need. Dogs need to be fit, healthy of good temperament, over 20kgs in weight and under 6 years of age. If you would like your dog to be considered as a possible blood donor please get in touch with the surgery. They may save a life like Henrys.

Catfield Church needs your help

Like many churches, Catfield Church is struggling to raise money for the actual running of the church, the annual insurance, for repairs and making improvements to the building facilities.

If you would be interested in becoming part of a Friends of Catfield Church Group, with the aim of raising money to preserve our beautiful church, please email judithgardiner5@aol.com or drop a note in the Catfield News box in the village shop.

Could the rumour about a possible new Village Hall, playing area for the children and a woodland area opposite Saint Catherine's Avenue being refused by the Parish Council be true? Do we not live in a Democratic village? I'm sure the builder also wanted to put some more houses. What a good idea and places for young people to hopefully be able to buy and stay in the area.

I wonder if you have walked through the church yard this year and seen the wonderful display of early snow drops, and now the daffodils. I would not only to invite you to go and have a look but also thank John Ware, Keith Bacon and Alan Nicholson for their hard work. Soon the cherry blossom will be in flower and you are very welcome to come and sit and just be quiet, but I would like to gently remind you that dogs are welcome on a lead on the footpath but would ask that you do not allow them to run freely or foul anywhere in the churchyard.

Judith Gardiner Church Warden Dear Friends,

Reaching Easter means many things to people- the days are longer, the sun is stronger, and the land begins to take on a different hue. The Lesser Celandine, which happened to be Wordsworth's favourite flower, has long been out, and the summer lies before us, with all its promise. We look forward to our hot-cross buns on Good Friday, and Easter eggs on Easter Sunday- all those things are good, especially when we can share them with family and friends.

We also remember that the Christian Church in every corner of our planet celebrates Easter, too, as we also do here in our corner of rural Norfolk - it becomes for so many of us a moment in the year when we can re-kindle our faith, and we see the cross, the empty tomb after the resurrection of Christ, and the promise of new life in a fresh and dynamic way. It's a time when we don't just feel that God is with us, but we know that he has done something in our world through Jesus that will last forever- not just for a season, but literally for all eternity, and we are all called to be part of that. Each one of us has an invitation to meet with the risen Christ and know that he can change our lives forever. Not only that, but he can enable us to make sense of all that we felt had no real answers. The prayer for Easter Day contains these timeless words: 'Through the mighty resurrection of your Son, you overcame the old order of sin and death to make all things new in him...'

Here is a prayer that each of us could pray this Easter: 'Lord Jesus Christ, I thank you for everything you have done for me through the cross and resurrection- for the blessings that I have yet to experience, and the insights I have yet to discover, with all the joys that you hold in store for me. Re-kindle my faith, I pray, and remind me that I live each day in your growing light, and that no situation, however daunting it may seem, is finally beyond your power to redeem. So may I place my trust in you always- for this life, and in the life to come. Amen.

We would like to wish you all a happy and blessed Easter, and we look forward to seeing you at some of our various services across the Waterside Benefice.

Matthew Pike 9.8.69 - 3.3.23

Funny, loving, caring and crazy, always wanting to help others in their time of need. Loving husband, son, father, step father, brother and dear friend to many. Tragically taken too soon. Shelley and family would like to thank everyone for their cards and kind words of comfort. He will be missed by many.

Leslie Wharton and Rose and Jim Wakefield

The families of the late Leslie Wharton and Rose and Jim Wakefield wish to thank everyone for their kindness and messages of support. It has been a very difficult time but it has provided comfort in knowing that so many people had nothing but kind words for them. Thanks to Reverend Gary Noyes for conducting both services and for his guidance in steering us through this difficult journey. Also thank you to Scott and Gail for laying on a great buffet at the Crown.

FARMING NEWS

Spring Barley and Spring beans are all drilled in perfect seedbeds, all the winter cereals have had some Nitrogen and Sulphur. Second cereals have had some Potash. Why Potash? Potash (Potassium) helps leaves to grow, whereas Phosphate helps roots to grow. Generally in Catfield soil Phosphate levels are OK and we don't need to apply any additional Phosphate. As all the Spring Barley follows Sugar beet, the vast majority of the available soil Potassium has been taken up by the Sugar Beet, leaving very little for the following crop, so we apply Potassium in the form of Muriate of Potash (MOP). All the winter ploughing is complete and is probably the best ploughing that has ever been done for sugar beet. Finally, all the 2022 sugar beet have been delivered without any mud on the road after a very difficult season which ended with only two sugar factories working. One fell to bits and the other ran out of water.

Lambing is almost finished. It's been the worst year ever for difficult births but we monitor the ewes every couple of hours and help them as needed. Generally, it's just a bit of help to straighten the lamb's front legs and out they pop. After the lambs are a couple of days old, they are pretty robust which is good as on the 9th March it was pretty cold and snowing for most of the day.

We're all getting our minds around The Environmental Improvement Plan, this builds on the 2018 plan and sets out how Defra and going to work with landowners, communities and businesses to deliver its goals. There are 10 goals, you can imagine what they will be but I've yet to meet anyone who has read, or even downloaded the 260 page report. As usual there is a mix of carrots, incentives like ELMS and sticks to beat us. So we are supposed to be engaging with ELMS and particularly SFI (Sustainable Farming Incentive) but the problem with the first brick, soil, in the SFI wall it delivers a barrier for Spring cropping farms such as what we have in Catfield. Later this Summer 6 more bricks arrive. I'm not convinced that farmers will engage. The truth is that the same drivers are behind SFI as there were behind BPS but very few farmers read the cross compliance rules and just collected the subsidy and seemed to be surprised when they received fines. SFI wants farmers to sign up to specific management guidelines which will deliver clean, water, clean air, reduce waste and better soil. I think we are already doing the higher level of management required in Catfield, so in theory it should be a walk in the park.

Biodiversity Net Gain. This is planning Highway robbery. If an applicant wants planning permission there has to be a 10% biodiversity net gain from November. I can't see this scheme delivering much at all except promises. To calculate what is required someone has developed "Biodiversity Metric 4.0" to calculate the baseline then how many BNG credits are required for the legal agreement for a 30 year period. I can think of much cheaper ways to achieve a net gain- talk to farmers.

Farming in a Protected Landscape (FiPL)- that's us in Broads National Park, except it's not a National Park and in North Norfolk AONB. This is quite an interesting fund which helps support nature recovery, mitigate the impacts of climate change and supports a more nature friendly farm businesses. I think this is what my farming business is becoming- nature friendly - its all there if you look closely just sitting in fields enjoying life and eating my crops. Having had a pint with the Catfield Environmental Group in the pub, this should be what they are trying to promote.

ThinkWilt on The Scottish Play

Chaucer may have regarded April with its showres soote as a time for pilgrimage, but ThinkWilt is leaving it a month or two. Expect a traveller's tale when the weather warms up and the trains run on time.

Thanks to a friend from a theatrical family, ThinkWilt knows that it is unacceptable to refer to Shakespeare's tragedy of Macbeth in any but the most oblique terms. Even the line apparently banishing a recalcitrant hound is barred. However, after a performance of the Scottish Play (the tolerated euphemism), some thoughts bubbled up from the witches' cauldron, linking Shakespeare's character to its historical origins (via the notoriously inaccurate Holinshed Chronicles on which the Bard seemed to rely), to King James I, whom we borrowed from the Scots, and to the present day.

The historical Macbeth, like Shakespeare's, was a minor aristocrat, but succeeded almost by chance the unfortunate King Duncan, who died in battle against him. Death in battle was felt in those days to be an honourable end for a monarch, but the succession of the victor to the throne may not have been entirely uncontroversial. Nearly six hundred years later, when the play was published, King James, too, may have worn his crown uneasily. Queen Elizabeth I, whom the Scots did not recognise, had died without issue, and the Scottish James VI, son of Mary, Queen of Scots, was regarded as a unifying force and as a bulwark against Catholic insurgency. That the fears of rebellion were justified was demonstrated by the Gunpowder Plot two years after James' accession, and Shakespeare's play, published a year later, may have served to show that removing a monarch by violence rarely ends well - a reassurance to his King and a deterrent to residual dissidents.

The premature end of a reign has occurred three times since. It took less than a hundred years after James I's accession in 1603 for Charles I (by execution after only faintly questionable due process) and James II (by an almost bloodless revolution) to lose their jobs, and then some 250 years later Edward VIII was forced to abdicate by a combination of ecclesiastical, parliamentary and public pressure over his determination to marry a woman who was divorced - and American to boot. The children of HRH the Princess of Wales have rendered remote the possibility of Prince Harry's accession, so that issue is unlikely to arise again in our lifetime.

By analogy we can move on to the removal of those who purport to run the country. A barely adequate process for throwing the government out every five years doesn't seem to satisfy our current ruling party, which has seen two internal defenestrations so far, and ThinkWilt has predicted a third before the year is out. Shakespeare does not tell us what the subjects of the Scottish Gentleman thought, but ThinkWilt wonders what we should make of current events.

ThinkWilt is the pen name of Richard Reid. The views expressed are his own.

Quick and cheap ways to increase the value of your home.

If you are considering selling your property, you're most likely hoping that the valuations will come in high. Make sure that you get the highest valuation possible with these tips.

Everyone wants their home to be worth as much as possible. If you are considering selling your property, you're most likely hoping that the valuations will come in high. There are many reasons why we hope for a high valuation:

- 1. If you sell for a high price and buy for a lower price, you will release some of the equity built up over the time you've owned the property.
- If you're hoping to buy a more expensive property than you are selling, the higher the valuation is on your current property, the less cash you will have to add to your purchase to make up the difference.
- 3. Ego. It is human nature to want your home to have value. Our homes are our castles, and we are proud of them. Maybe this is so that you can boast to your friends or work colleagues or simply feel your home was a sound investment. A high valuation on your property is validation that the work you've done over the years, the mortgage payments you've made, or the investment you've made into upgrading parts of the property have not been in vain.

And did you know there are ways that you can, almost instantly and almost cost-free, make small changes that can significantly impact the value of your property and increase the ultimate sale price?

Cleanliness - It seems obvious, but if your property is not clean, it will be less appealing to a viewer. More than simply a run around with a hoover and bleach around the bathroom, a deep clean before your valuations could pay dividends. Paying particular attention to grout around tiles and silicone around the kitchen and bathrooms as these are quite difficult to clean properly but are very noticeable on a viewing appointment.

Dated Decor - If the decor within your home is dated or perhaps looking a bit worse for wear, this can significantly impact the attraction of your property. A viewer will be looking at your property through a very critical lens, so peeling wallpaper, faded walls, or scuffed and chipped woodwork will give the impression that your property has lots of work needed to get it up to standard. It could hugely improve the valuation of your property if you spend a few weekends freshening up the decor.

Overgrown Gardens - An overgrown garden not only looks messy, but it will also seem smaller! A viewer will see an unkempt garden as a huge challenge they must tackle, which might prevent them from making an offer. Square footage equals value, so a quick way to show the full extent of your outside space is to cut back and tidy up the bushes, trees and flower beds.

The intention here is to showcase your home in a way that is as much of a blank canvas as possible. Unless you're selling a property for refurbishment, and this is reflected in the marketing price, your property is more than likely an average, lived-in, family home. And it is expected that you, your family, and all your belongings will also be living in the property. You aren't expected to have a 'show-room standard' home, but clearing out as much as possible to show off the size and space you have properly could improve the price that someone will be willing to offer you.

In addition, the average family searching for a new home will not necessarily want to take on a large project. If your property gives the impression that there is much work to do, you could put potential buyers off.

By following these tips, you will present your home so that a buyer can clearly see the size and state of your property without giving them a mental to-do list of all the tasks they will have to tackle. If your home is ready for them to move into, and they can see themselves being happy and settling in quickly, then you are more likely to be able to negotiate a higher offer from them.

Tip: Before you take a shower, wipe shaving foam on the bathroom mirror. It will stop it from fogging up so you don't have to wait before putting on make-up or shaving after you get out of the shower.

There are prizes for children and fun discovering our local wildlife. And remember, all 12s and under visit the Museum for free in 2023!

We have indoor and outdoor family activities and you can experience our unique watery landscape from one of our 2 boats too. Dogs are welcome so bring the whole family along!

So, what are you waiting for? We look forward to welcoming you to our historic and unique setting by the river at Stalham!

'Living' Drama (12A, 102 mins)

A remake of Akira Kurosawa's 1952 film Ikiru, with a screenplay by Kazuo Ishiguro. When Mr Williams (Bill Nighy), a buttoned-up bureaucrat in 1950s London, is diagnosed as terminally ill, he decides that he would like to achieve something for once, instead of just endlessly pushing paper. A group of ladies has come into the Public Works office, asking to have a hazardous area in their neighbourhood transformed into a children's playground. With nothing to show for his decades of service, the formerly ineffectual Mr Williams makes it his personal mission to push the job through before he dies. A heart-breaking performance by everybody's favourite, Bill Nighy.

Tickets are £5 each, which includes tea or coffee in the interval.
